The Carlstadt News Extends Merry Christmas Greetings to Our Many Friends

Water?

Carlstadt Village Council for 1914 met in its last session last Friday night, in V. E. Starr's office. Present: Chairman Cotter, councillors McDiarmid and Wagner, sec. Starr and ye scribe.

The article in last week's News, re the well was discussed pro and con. It was agreed that the well be fixed, but the money question was a stumbling block. After some figuring and further talk, it was decided that that part could be arranged. Then, on motion of Mr. Cotter, Mr. McDiarmid was appointed to look further into the matter and report at the first meeting of the 1915 council.

Sec. Starr reported that he had been informed by the Edmonton authorities that the 1915 school tax rate on farm lands was too high, and accordingly had been refunding 20 per cent to those who had paid their taxes.

Bills were ordered paid as follows:

Gentlemen: To all who voted and worked for me, I tender my hearty thanks. Yours truly,

A Word to the Ladies

Upon the women of our communities depends the success or failure of the spend-our-money-at-home movement. This fact cannot be impressed too strongly on those who would correct the tendency to spend so much of it abroad. Among the questions that must be answered are these: Why is so much money sent out for goods that could be bought at home? Is it because of custom, or because they can really be bought cheaper? There is no doubt that custom has much to do with out-of-town purchasing. The big city departmental stores, with their extensive mail order systems, have a strong attractive force. But those who follow closely their operations know full well that when quality is taken into account, these so-called bargains are more apparent than real. Money makes the mare go, is an old saying, and it has just as much to do with making the community go. Our smaller cities and towns will languish as long as our people will send away the cream of the retail trade.

Only five German steamers are known to be at sea, as against ten thousand British steamers. "Britanna Rules the Waves."

Ideal Christmas weather, clear and cold, with the ground white with "the beautiful."

LOCAL AND GENERAL

T. A. Finlay, of Medicine Hat, arrived last week and has taken charge of the Finlay Co.'s lumber business here.

John Danielson has returned to his land here after a summer's work with the C.P.R. bridge workers.

Sunny South council met in Carlstadt yesterday, to close up the business of the year.

About two thirds of the population of Brutus was in Carlstadt and Medicine Hat last Thursday and Friday.

Hon. C. S. Fingle has been officially appointed quartermaster of the mounted regiment being raised at Medicine Hat.

Norman Malmon, of North Dakota, was in town this week securing lumber for a house on a homestead south of town, on which he felled last summer.

C. T. Hildahl is in receipt of $25.00 in cash from the Lutheran Young People's Society of Camrose, to distribute among the needy here, which he has done.

Mr. Frank E. McDiarmid, Mayor elect of Carlstadt, Mr. Al Cole, Hon. Pound Keeper, and Mr. H. S. Ketchum, ye Heddor, followed the hounds on a coyote hunt last Friday. This dazzling array of talent was too much for the poor creatures who fled in precipitate haste. One lone coyote was brought into camp.

Chas. Derr was in the Hat yesterday.

Miss Ruth Derr returned last evening from Calgary, having finished the course at the normal school. Beginning with the new year she will be primary teacher in the Redcliff school.

Carlstadt's paper this week enters upon its fourth year of publication.

Rev Fr. Hilden, of Winnipeg, who was at his old home in Germany when the war broke out, declares that the common people there did not want the war.

Mrs M. V. Wilson was in Edmonton last week, returning Saturday.

Every care should be taken this cold weather not to over heat the stoves, as fire fighting would be a difficult task with the mercury at zero.

Farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Wagner

Nearly everyone in Carlstadt was at the station Tuesday evening to say "good-by" to Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wagner. Mr. and Mrs. Wagner have gone as far as Moose Jaw, where they will spend Christmas with her relatives, after which Mr. Wagner leaves for England, to see his mother who is very ill, and probably to enlist in Kitchener's army.

Mr. and Mrs. Wagner have been in Carlstadt almost since the town started, he being the local manager for the Finlay Lumber Co. They have made a great number of friends, and will be very much missed in the town. On Monday evening, a farewell dance was arranged by the Social Club. The Basano Orchestra supplied excellent music, and a delectable luncheon was served.

On Thursday last, the Home Guard had a special parade in the drill hall. A number of ladies graced the occasion, also a number of visitors were present and all were surprised by the "form" and exactness with which the various manoeuvres were executed. At the conclusion of the drill, A. C. Hughes, drill master of the Guard, in a neat little speech, expressed the regret of all, that the Guard was to lose its organizer, and W. M. Cotter presented Mr. Wagner with a steamer trunk, on behalf of the members of the Guard "crim, jam, jolly our best wishes." His address was as follows:

"It is with mingled feelings of pleasure and regret that we make this presentation to you tonight, on behalf of the Carlstadt Home Guard and others of your fellow citizens. On this occasion of your departure for the Motherland, it gives us great pleasure to extend this token of our friendship and esteem, yet we all feel regret at losing one who has been such a prime mover in things both social and official in our little town. In promoting this organization, the Home Guard, you have started a good work, and it is to be hoped that we shall all persevere until we are well-drilled and efficient to bear arms for our Country in her time of need. If you should enlist for active service, we shall be continually thinking of you and wishing for your welfare. We know that you will do credit to the Home Guard and your Native Land. We hope this trunk will stay with you through good and evil, and we hope to someday see you safely return to our midst."

Then S. G. McNab, on behalf of the ladies, presented Mrs. Wagner with a Persian ivory toilet set.

Tripola

The old year will be danced out, and the new one, in, at the Tripola schoolhouse.

If the party who sent in the letter signed "Not a Groucher," will send in his name, we shall be glad to publish the letter. The name will be kept strictly confidential, but we must know it, as an evidence of good faith.

From Missouri

Some people who have an idea that Western Canada is the only spot hit by the war may be interested in the following extracts from a letter by Gus Rosenberg, formerly of Carlstadt, but now at DeSoto, Missouri: "In St. Louis the city has started soup houses and are feeding 2,000 men a day. There is no work to be had here in De Soto at all. Harry and I were in all the stores trying to get a job. (I have quit looking for a position) as grocery clerk for me, but we were unsuccessful. The shoe factory in which my brother is employed, and has been for a number of years back, will shut down on the 10th of January. We are going north after that date, but I don't know just where, but it will probably be Hannibal. People say they have never experienced such hard times before."

Relief for the Schools

Mr. Gorman, school inspector for this district, was in Carlstadt Monday on business regarding relief for school districts. He made arrangements with several, and plans to return next week and go out Jenner way, where several schools have applied.

Everyone remembers F. E. Quass, who left here a couple months ago, for Illinois. He went by way of Lincoln, Nebraska, where he had business, but is still there, as the authorities put him in the insane asylum for treatment.

There will be a special Christmas dinner at the Carlstadt hotel, beginning at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Mrs. A. J. Drummond is sending the holiday with her husband, at the Medicine Hat hospital.

On January 20th, in Medicine Hat, the liberal candidate for this constituency will be named.

Christmas at Rainy Valley

A splendid Christmas program was rendered Tuesday evening at the Rainy Valley school by the pupils. Bessie Williamson, Clifford Fardon, Howard and Halsey MacDonald, Edna Steed, Madge Steed, Edna Olsen, Philip Olson, Irene Olsen, Glen Dahl and Florence Dahl. They were assisted by Miss Lamoy, Mrs. Frank Steed, Clara Barrie, L. Tammeros, C. O. Olsen and Frank Stead. Rev. F. E. Clydale was chairman. Besides being the Yuletide celebration, the affair marked the close of a very successful school year, under the teaching of Miss Muir. A large number of parents and friends were present. The program was a most excellent one, reflecting great credit on the pupils and those who had trained them. Also several enjoyable numbers were contributed by outsiders. At the proper time, Mr. Santa Claus arrived on the scene, and made the boys and girls of happy with presents and a treat of candies, apples and popcorn.

Cornelius Monaghan was in Medicine Hat Friday, to try to find a market for 40 hogs which he has. He was unsuccessful. What was being sold on the market, brought 10c a pound, but the demand was very light.

No definite word has been received yet about the government hay.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 24

Jenner

Nels Grant, who has been in Dakota, returned to his land here last week.

The Christmas tree by the River Bend school and Sunday school was held Wednesday night, December 23rd, a fine program was given. (We might add that this is the school that has won the Stathcona award for two or three years past. H. O. Klinck is teacher). A good crowd was present and an excellent time enjoyed.

U. F. A. is active here, buying flour, feed and other supplies. They meet every two weeks in Jenner. Watch out for the annual meeting soon.

Webdale's stage from Carlstadt via Tripola and Pelee is heavily loaded those days with Christmas mail. Beside the passengers last trip, there were sixteen sacks of letters, papers and Christmas gifts.

Wm. Klinck and son Raymond returned last week from eastern Saskatchewan, where they have been since August 1st. Mr. Klinck was limping some from a recent kick by a steer, but is recovering rapidly.

Methodist services are held in Jenner every Sunday afternoon. S. S. at 2 o'clock and church at 3, and are well attended. A literary society has been formed and will have its first meeting January 6th. "Johnny" Gordon, the missionary in charge, is certainly "making good." Though few know it, he is a nephew of Dr. Gordon, who is better known as Ralph Connor, famous writer and missionary.

Jenner is a busy place Wednesdays, train day, and Saturdays, mail day. The business of the town calls for an average of ten cars on the siding all the time.

The first train from Swift Current through, passed a couple of weeks ago.

BELGIAN DOGS DRAWING MACHING GUN

The dogs of Flanders are playing an important part in the war. Small, yet strong and ever willing, they are used for drawing the machine guns to the scene of action.

Communication

Mr. Editor:

What was that notice in a recent issue of The News about the wells and stray animals? "Eight months free board is offered for all wells left open." Is the correspondent joking?

Canada ought not to be altogether ignorant of what science teaches about sunlight and fresh air. See how nasty wet and ugly is the curbing of a closed well. Long experience has proven that cancer, that terrible disease, is located particularly in closed wells where fresh air, purified by sunlight, is wanting.

Canada seems not at all to be ahead in following the rules science for health and cleanliness. The disgusting custom allowed in hotels and likewise on farms, of two men sleeping together in one bed, speaks for itself.

Liberty is good when not used for badness. But to constrain liberty for the benefit of egotistic badness is wrong.

If a spiteful or indolent neighbor turns his cattle stray on my field, and they pile up by my well for water, and tumble down in the well in spite of the boards I have round it; surely the neighbor ought not only to suffer his loss, but also to pay me for the damage and trouble on my well! Quite another thing it is when a well is left open with no boards or fence around it.

Do the laws constrain the liberty of the farmer as master of his own land for the sake of stray animals?

The ideal should be, that every man be the master on his own farm and that egotistic, narrow minded neighbors shall have nothing to say on another man's farm.

COROT SAVED THE TILE.

He Turned a High Hat Tragedy into a Work of Art.

An interesting relic of Corot is to be seen in the gallery of a picture dealer in the Champs Elysees. It takes the form of a wooden frame containing a grey high hat of a style "now forgotten quite." A card explains that "this landscape is the crown of the hat is guaranteed to be a genuine work of Corot."

One sees in the hat a rapid study of the artist. The artist has utilized the blue silk lining of the hat to improvise a beautiful sky of summer reflected in the peaceful water below. Upon the bank are three trees and a picturesque harbor tower, while white clouds among the blue complete the scene. Readers must not jump to the conclusion that this hat landscape is an example of the eccentricity of genius. It is the result of what appeared to be the tragedy of a "whiff" hat which belonged to a friend of the master. The friend, calling on Corot, happened to place his brand new hat near the easel. In extending the hand Corot's brush fell into the hat, leaving an indelible mark.

A cry of despair followed, not exactly that which a high authority has told us is uttered when husbands or lap dogs breathe their last, but nevertheless it was a despairing cry, "My hat is spoiled!"

"Not at all," said Corot, bursting into a hearty laugh. "I will soon put that all right." The painter brushed away the stain caused by the accident, and in a few minutes the picture was complete, and the owner of the hat left the studio with a much more valuable chattel than that with which he entered—London Globe.

CORAL REEFS.

They Cannot Form in the Line of a Fresh Water Flow.

Coral reefs surround many of the islands in the Pacific. They protect the lowlands from the washing of the waves, and the still waters inclosed by them are the only harbors of refuge for ships. The reefs themselves furnish the greatest peril to navigation, and if there were no inlet through which a vessel could enter their protected circle they would be a danger and nothing else.

But almost every reef has such an inlet. It is a necessary result of the law under which the forces of nature work. To understand this we must see how these reefs are formed.

Chemically the coral reefs are almost pure carbonate of lime, the substance of ordinary limestone and marble. The reef grows as the shell of the oyster or of any other shellfish grows. It is itself the common and undivided shell of innumerable polyp, or minute insects, which are being reproduced and are dying in successive generations.

These things being got all their living from the waters of the sea. It is from this source also that they derive the bulk of lime from which they secrete the bony structure that remains after the animal is dead.

The coral polyp cannot live in fresh water. Their food supply is brought to them by the waves and currents of the sea. As a result, it is found that directly opposite the mouth of a stream from the inland the reef does not grow. There will be the inlet to the inclosed waters—Harper's Weekly.

The Matches We Burn.

It has been estimated that for each minute of time the civilized nations of the world strike 5,000,000 matches. This is said to be the average for every minute of the twenty-four hours of the day. Fifteen hundred billion is the number for the entire year; and those persons who live under the American flag are charged with the consumption of one-half of this amount. Small and insignificant as it is, the match and matches draw so much attention in the choice of goods involved as any other form of product. Only the choicest portions of the best trees are suitable. Baywood and knotty or cross grained wood will not do. Instead of being a by-product the little match is turned out in mills where the byproducts are bulky objects like doors, sashes, shingles, window sashes and cordwood. The planes, linens, sashes, white cedar, poplar, birch and willow are the most suitable match timbers—Chicago News.

Preparing His Speech.

A reply very characteristic of the statesman and diplomat who made it is given in the "Autobiography of Alfred Austin." Lord and Lady Salisbury were among the guests at Stewell House. Lord Salisbury had come to speak at a public meeting. On the morning of the day when the speech was to be delivered, seeing Lord Salisbury passing into the study, I said to him:

"I suppose you are going to think over what you will say tonight?"

"No," he said in his frank way, "rather to think over what I said last night."

To Meet an Emergency.

"Madam, have you any old clothes to give away?"

"I have a suit belonging to my husband, but I fear it is too big for you."

"Oh, that will be all right! You just set out a square meal and watch the cat scratch so that I can fill it!"—Washington Times.

Inference Easy.

BACK OF A SNAKE.

It Can Easily Be Broken by a Crack With a Can.

The first impulse of a man on seeing a snake is to stamp on the head which, according to The Powers Magazine, is untrue. A snake's skull is very strong as he never uses it as the body that is always liable to be bent against stones, etc., owing to the extreme shortness of its all supports.

The back, on the contrary, can be broken with a light rap, for it consists of a delicate system of small socket joints. Should snakes be harmless the best plan is to leave them alone; should they be dangerous, they should be shot from a revolver in safe and effective. In case no revolver is at hand a rap with a cane will be sufficient, but care must not normally go about hitting its skull against hard objects. It does this only when in a hurry. Moving at its ordinary pace, it feels its way with its long, delicate, forked tongue.

In the same way when about to swallow its food it touches it all over with its tongue in order to ascertain where to take hold, and this process has given rise to the mistaken idea that a snake covers its prey with saliva prior to swallowing it. No such a considerable quantity of saliva is generated during the process of deglutition, but it does not come from the tongue, which is merely used as a feeler.

When a snake bites it bleeds its head up to the nape of its neck and opens its jaws till they are in the same plane as the right angles to the body. These jaws are provided with rows of strong, sharp teeth, four on the upper jaw and four on the lower jaw.

This is a very formidable arrangement, but when you remember that a man used a snout can project its head with sufficient force to knock a man off his feet and still machinery you are likely to avoid considerations so far as it is possible. Such a snake can take hold of a man, shake him or strip the skin and flesh from the part seized as if it were paper.

The First Cigarette.

Before the discovery of America the old world had never imagined tobacco and its delights. Christopher Columbus and his followers were the first from the eastern hemisphere to see men smoking. When they landed on the island in the name of San Salvador they beheld, to their astonishment, a group of natives sitting on the shore puffing clouds of smoke from their lips and nostrils. On inspection it was found that the dried leaves of some herb were wrapped in the leaves of the maize or corn plant and formed into cylindrical rolls, one end of which was cut into the mouth of the other kindred and the smoke was drawn in and puffed out again.

In short, the Indians were smoking cigarettes.

Napoleon's Model Library.

Napoleon once ordered a list of all the books in the world which were worth preserving. He believed when he set down to his task that a thousand volumes would suffice, but the list grew under his hand and ultimately included 3,000 volumes.

Even so, however, there were omissions of which Edmund Gosse, as well as the general reader, would have been likely to complain. The Emperor came to look over his first list he found that he had unconsciously left out the Bible. In his second list he forgot to mention not only Vergil and Shakespeare, but very considerably—Moliere.—Westminster Gazette.

Handkerchiefs.

The words "pocket handkerchief" have a curious history. The syllable "ker" is short for the word "chief" to cover, and "chief" is nothing else but "chief" in the sense of chiefs were used also for the neck, and that made them neckerchiefs. Finally when they became what they now are and were carried in the hand they expanded into handkerchiefs. Then when pockets were invented and worn in the time of Queen Elizabeth the term pocket handkerchiefs came into use. The word "pocket" is nothing but a form of the old Saxon word "poke," a bag or pouch combined with the diminutive "et."

Identified Himself.

The great tenor Mario once had to give a free exhibition of his magnificent vocal power in court in order to gain freedom for himself. He had been arrested in Madrid in mistake for a mischievous political agitator and in vain proclaimed his identity to the powers that be. Finally he was told that if he really was the famous singer his voice was a certain means of convincing the court of the truth of his claim. For seven or eight minutes Mario held all within hearing spell-bound, and he was then allowed to take his departure, with profuse apologies for his arrest and detention.

She Knew.

Despite manifold contradictions it is common to hear people say that women do not know so well.

"Mary," remarked Angeline, "I am sorry to see you using hair dye. Do you not know that hair dye affects the eyes?"

"Why, Angeline, dear, that's just what I am using it for."

Even if it was, he is so subtle with she has a great deal of intuition, and that is of itself a great benefit.

Not Surprised.

"What's that you have in your hand?" asked Mrs. Gimlet of her husband as he brought home a roll of manuscript.

Br. ma, madam, he retorted, Mr. Gimlet pompously. "Are you surprised at the fact?"

"Not in the least," she replied. "I knew you didn't carry them in your hand."
